Introduction

This booklet lists addresses of organizations and government departments that deal with legal, advocacy, and disability issues in the larger communities in British Columbia and the Yukon.

This booklet is one in a series of five that have been developed by the Volunteer Legal Advocacy Program (VLAP). Other booklets available:

- Advocacy
- MS and Human Rights
- Canada Pension Plan Disability Benefits
- Disability Insurance

Booklets are available at www.mssociety.ca/bc/vlap.htm, Multiple Sclerosis Society of Canada chapter offices or from the Multiple Sclerosis Society of Canada, BC & Yukon Division office.

VLAP provides a range of legal and advocacy support to people living with MS throughout British Columbia and the Yukon by utilizing volunteers who have legal expertise and/or advocacy experience.

Pro bono legal representation is available in specific legal areas of expertise in several communities throughout the BC & Yukon Division. Please contact the BC & Yukon Division office for details.

Legal Services Society

Web www.lss.bc.ca

The Legal Services Society is the organization that provides legal aid in BC. LSS has a range of free services that may help you. We give priority to people with low incomes, but many services are available to all British Columbians. They offer:

- Information provided by our publications, the Family Law in BC website, intake assistants, and, in some communities, legal information outreach workers and Aboriginal community legal workers.

- Advice from duty counsel lawyers or family advice lawyers.
- Representation (a lawyer to take your case) if you qualify and have serious family, child protection, or criminal law issues (and for some immigration, mental health, and prison law issues).

You can apply for legal aid by phone or in person. To determine if you are eligible to apply for legal aid please visit www.lss.bc.ca/legal_aid/dolQualifyAdvice.asp. Visit the website to locate the regional office nearest you.

Family LawLINE

Telephone 604-408-2172

Toll Free 1-866-577-2525
